

ECCK HR Seminar

Collaborative Labour Relations in Europe

Monday, September 23, 2019, 14:15

Berlin Room (3F), Seoul Square (416 Hangang-daero Jung-gu)

Event Outline

Mr. Rutger Ploum will share his experience in how collaborative labour relations in Europe work. As a European employment law expert and leader of one of the Dutch political parties, Rutger can combine his knowledge of politics with his day-to-day experience in representing employers in disputes with unions and work councils. Being based in the heart of Europe's largest logistics hub, he will share his insights on collaboration between employers, unions and governments on labour and social issues in Europe (including the success story of the Dutch 'polder').

Speaker Profile

Rutger Ploum
Partner
Ploum

Rutger is the managing partner and co-head of the employment practice at Ploum Rotterdam Law Firm. Nearly 25 years ago he was one of the seven founders of this full-service firm that has been the fastest growing law firm in the Netherlands in the past year. He focuses on individual and collective dismissal law, reorganizations and redundancy programmes, appointment and dismissal of statutory directors and disciplinary measures. Rutger represents many large listed companies and has a track record in high-profile employment litigation. In 2019 Rutger was elected as chairman of one of the largest political parties in the Netherlands. That role places him in the middle of the European socio-economic and political arena and provides him with valuable insights for his employment law practice.

Rutger graduated from Leiden in 1989, after which he completed an internship at the Dutch embassy in Jakarta which involved setting up trade missions between the Netherlands and Indonesia. Before founding Ploum, he was an attorney at one of the largest Benelux law firms.
